ROBERT DAKE MAINTAINING TERRIFIC PACE

LEADS AT PECOS IN THE CLASS A AIR DERBY

LANDS AMERICAN MOTH ON THE MUNICIPAL FIELD AT 11:00:10
A. M.

FOLLOWED 25 SECONDS LATER
BY EARLY ROWLAND OF WICHITA

Pecos, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Robert Dake, Pittsburgh, Pa., maintained his terrific pace in the national air race Class A between Midland and Pecos today, bringing his American Moth down on the municipal field here at 11:00:10 A. M.

Twenty-five seconds behind Dake, Earl Rowland, Wichita, Kansas, elapsed time leader of the flight, landed in his Cessna monoplane.

The flyers were greeted by Miss Amelia Earhart, only woman to fly across the Atlantic. Miss Earhart is waiting here while repairs to the plane in which she is making a triumph tour are sent from El Paso.

El Paso, Sept. 8.—The first plane to arrive here in Class A of the transcontinental air race was that of Theodore Kenyon, who landed at 12:25 P. M. today.

He was followed a few minutes later by W. H. Emery, second, Robert Dake, third, and Earl Rowland, fourth.

Midland, Texas, Sept. 8.—Three of the 25 planes remaining in the national air race Class A made forced landings between Fort Worth and Midland today, it was reported here.

Tex Rankin, of Portland, Ore., who held fourth position in elapsed time when the racers left Fort Worth this morning, was forced by a broken gas line to land in a field east of Midland. He repaired the break and was the 16th plane to land here.

Dale G. Jackson, St. Louis, was forced down by a broken water line at Moran, Texas, and has not reached here late today.

Identity of the third plane to be forced down was not learned here.

Bettis Field, McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 8.—The four Class C planes in the series of air dashes from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast arrived at Bettis Field this afternoon within 37 minutes of each other.

They had left Roosevelt Field, New York, shortly before noon.

Each left within a half hour for the next stop at Columbus, Ohio.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 8.—John Livingston, Monmouth, Ill., flying a Waco plane, led the transcontinental Class B air racers into Terre Haute today when he arrived at 12:05 P. M. Terre Haute is the overnight stop and all race fliers will rest here this afternoon and tonight before leaving for St. Louis at 4 A. M. tomorrow.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 8.—One of the airplanes competing in the cross-country race from New York to Los Angeles fell in the Ohio river a few miles west of here this afternoon, reports here said.

The craft, a monoplane with a blue body and white wings, was near an island across the river from Pittsburgh and would have to be reached by boat, which prevented authorities from learning the name of the pilot or if he was seriously injured.

It was thought the plane had fallen as it was heading westward from Columbus, Ohio, from Bettis Field, McKeesport.

Washington, Pa., Sept. 8.—(UP)—A Laird biplane, piloted by C. S. Holman of Minneapolis, in the transcontinental race for Class B planes landed today in a field five miles from here.

Holman was not injured, according to reports received here, and the plane was not badly damaged. It was thought a lack of gasoline may have caused Holman to land before he reached Bettis Field at McKeesport, the first control stop on the westward flight from New York.

ITALY REGARDS DIRIGIBLE BALLOON WITH DISFAVOR

Rome, Sept. 8.—(UP)—The government has decided to abolish the dirigible balloon as a weapon of warfare or a means of commercial transportation, it was announced today.

It was assumed that the decision was due directly to the disaster that befell the dirigible Italia on its recent North Pole flight.

Chicago and Philadelphia to Fight City Gangsters

MORE THAN 100,000 WOMEN TAKE PART IN SPECIAL MASS

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 8.—(UP)—More than 100,000 women took part in the special mass for women at the twenty-ninth international Eucharistic congress today.

Many of the women appeared with their children and the crowd thronged the show grounds, where the special services were held. Many women climbed on the fences and the advertising signs surrounding the park to view the proceedings.

Cardinal Ceretti, the papal delegate, presided at the special women's mass, while Archbishop Duhig was the celebrant. Bishop Whyte preached the sermon.

Ten thousand children attended communion this morning at St. Mary's Cathedral.

ALTITUDE CURE FOR DEAF MUTE FAILS TRAGICALLY

PLANE'S WINGS CRUMPLE AND OCCUPANTS CRASH TO GROUND

ACCIDENT OCCURRED AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS., FLYING FIELD

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Seven-year-old Luke Briotta, deaf and dumb since birth, wanted to be like other boys.

His father, Joseph Briotta, had heard that children similarly afflicted had been "cured" by being taken aloft in an airplane and literally "scared" into the use of their powers of speech and audition.

So yesterday Briotta took his son to the Agawan flying field and approached Charles Potholm, 28, of Hartford, Conn., a pilot of three years' experience.

Briotta was afraid to go along, but Abraham Mazer, 21, who was standing nearby, volunteered to accompany the deaf mute.

Pilot Potholm, Mazer and the boy climbed into a big Eaglerock biplane, and Potholm guided it to an altitude of about 2,000 feet. Then he looped-the-loop and as the plane swung onto the far side of the great circle the pilot threw the throttle wide open and the big biplane shot downward like a plummet.

On the ground below, scores of spectators including the boy's father, momentarily they expected to see the diving plane swing out of its plunge. But instead, they were horrified to see one of the plane's wings crumple. A second later the other wing folded up under the tremendous air pressure. The wingless craft, traveling at a speed estimated at 200 miles an hour, crashed into a swamp about a mile from the point of take-off.

The bodies of the Briotta boy and Mazer were found buried in five feet of mud. Potholm, in the rear cockpit, had been hurled through the instrument board. Air field workers dug into 20 feet of mud before they found the plane's engine.

WILLIAM S. BROWN, IMPERIAL TREASURER OF THE SHRINE, DIES

Golden Brown Derby Hat Chosen by Smith As Symbol of His Campaign For the Presidency

HUE THAT WILL CATCH THE GLINT OF WESTERN SUN

WILL APPEAL TO THE EYES OF THE CROWD EVERYWHERE

FURTHERMORE, THE GOVERNOR
KNOWS HOW TO WEAR IT

By THOMAS L. STOKES

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 8.—A golden brown derby hat has been selected by Governor Alfred E. Smith as the symbol of campaign for the presidency. It is of a hue that will catch the glint of the western sun and the eyes of crowds everywhere. Furthermore, the governor knows how to wear it.

The brown derby is symbolic of the color and romance of the former east side boy's career which will be carried into his presidential campaign and will make it unlike any other presidential campaign in years.

The democratic candidate will travel on a luxurious special car hitched to an excellently equipped train, his addresses will be carried far and wide by the radio, but the atmosphere of his campaign will be that of those of other days made in draughty day coaches with speeches from back platforms that were heard by comparatively few, when Smith lived on the east side.

His will be no "high hat" campaign, he has decreed. He will go before the people as "Al Smith," for thus they have known him. The democratic candidate is dignified, officially. Even close friends do not call him "Al" when they visit him at the capitol here.

But without losing his dignity, he becomes "Al" to the crowds, and he likes it. The mantle drops off easily.

He will speak as he always has spoken in his New York state campaigns, extemporaneously, allowing him the play of humor, mimicry and pantomime which made him a favorite as an amateur actor on the Bowery years ago. As his train stops at small towns and cities, he will show himself to the crowds. The derby will be there, signifying "Al" to the crowds.

3 OF BYRD PLANES TO BE PLACED ON BOARD ARCTIC WHALER

Washington, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Three airplanes to be used by Commander Richard E. Byrd on his Antarctic expedition took off from the naval air field here today for Hampton Roads, Va., where they will be placed aboard the whaler Larsen, one of Byrd's ships.

The planes arrived here yesterday from Mitchell Field, N. Y., piloted by Bert Balchen, Ean Smith and Harold I. June.

Flies with Mascot

Tex Rankin, No. 13 entry in Class "A" of national air races, photographed with his black cat mascot just before he took off from Roosevelt Field, L. I., on arduous cross-country trip. Yesterday Rankin lost his mascot at Kansas City.

CONVERT PAPER PROFITS ON STOCKS INTO CASH

HEAVY REALIZING SALES ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET OPENS FIRM AND ADVANCES IN EARLY DEALINGS

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Paper profits made in the stock market during the past week, were in many cases converted into cash in heavy realizing sales on the exchange today. The market opened firm and advanced in early dealings, only to run into heavy profit taking. Buying made an appearance on the recession and a sharp rally ensued, but the list closed irregular in lighter trading.

U. S. Steel, General Motors, Montgomery Ward and radio were depressed several points in the selling of mid-session, but they were supported amply on the decline and several special issues forged ahead to new high ground.

Activity and strength continued in Warner Brothers pictures and Fox film, all of which rose to new records.

PRES. COOLIDGE IN RADIO SPEECH FOR HOOVER

TO SPEAK IN BEHALF OF NOMINEE AND REPUBLICAN TICKET

TO BE BROADCAST FROM WASHINGTON ON NIGHT OF
SEPT. 14

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 8.—President Coolidge will make a radio speech in behalf of Herbert Hoover and the republican ticket, to be broadcast from here probably the night of September 14, the United Press was informed today on reliable authority.

Arrangements are being made with broadcasting authorities so the president's first and only campaign address may inaugurate the program of "45 consecutive speaking nights" planned by the republican national committee.

Walter Newton, chairman of the republican speakers' bureau, obtained the president's consent to make the speech, when he called yesterday at the summer White House at Brule, Wis.

News of the arrangements followed previous reports from Brule that the president would take no part in the vote drive. These reports had indicated Mr. Coolidge felt an occupation of the White House might not adversely speak in a political campaign.

It has been customary for retiring presidents to speak publicly in behalf of their party, and Hoover's friends are confident the president's address will have a marked influence on the final drive.

The arrangements made by broadcasting companies would enable the chief executive to deliver his address from the White House. A contract already has been signed giving the republican national committee half an hour each alternate night over the "red" and "blue" national networks, beginning the night of Sept. 14.

It was also learned today that Hoover does not intend to develop any new issues in his four coming presidential campaign speeches. He plans merely to amplify some of the platform points laid down in his speech of acceptance and in subsequent addresses—prohibition, tariff, labor and foreign relations.

Merger negotiations are rumored under way by Warner and is believed Fox has consolidation under consideration.

Timken roller bearing, American sugar, Armour A., Associated Dry Goods, commercial solvents, international nickel, Keith Albee Orpheum and several other issues reached new highs.

GERMAN AIRSHIP TO SAIL FROM GERMANY TO LAKEHURST, N. J.

Washington, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Postmaster General New was advised today by the German postal administration that the German airship "Count Zeppelin" will make two or three flights in September and October between Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Lakehurst, N. J.

On the flights from Germany to this country, the dirigible will carry ordinary letters and postal cards. Mail will be accepted in this country for dispatch on the return flights.

One dollar will be charged for each letter and 50 cents for each post card, in addition to the regular postage fee, for all mail sent to Europe aboard the dirigible.

ANOTHER DAY OF AUTO RACES AT STATE FAIR

THOUSANDS POUR THROUGH
TURNSTILES ON LAST DAY
SATURDAY

ATTENDANCE OF WEEK EXPECTED TO SURPASS THAT OF LAST YEAR

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Thousands of persons, attracted by another day of automobile racing, poured through the turnstiles of the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Livestock Show today.

Average crowds today will swell the attendance mark to better that of last year. Although the attendance on Friday fell below that of previous days, the attendance of the week was expected to surpass that of last year.

The attendance Friday stood at 361,618 as compared to 350,467 for the first seven days last year.

In addition to the automobile races featuring Sig Haugdahl and Lou Schneider, dirt track speeders, fair visitors were to be entertained with a program of vaudeville acts and airplane stunting.

The wedding of Dorothy Landis and Archie Phillips, both of St. Paul, in the basket of the giant captive balloon thousands of feet above the earth was also to be held today. The ceremony was postponed yesterday on account of high winds.

Children's spelling contests and judging of junior sheep and lamb entries took place Friday. Marion Boline, 12, Meeker county, won first place in the oral spelling contest when Mae Whiting, 13, Ottertail county, spelled "sac" with a "k." George A. Selke, president of St. Cloud Teachers' College, officiated at the contest.

Other prizes were won by Lucy Barton, Pope county, third; Donald Otis, Mille Lacs county, fourth; Valme Campbell, Dodge county, fifth, and Evelyn Keister, Martin county, sixth.

Edna Erickson, Coleraine, placed first in the written spelling contest. Ethel Vesovich, Calumet, placed second and other contestants were not graded according to places.

Janet McFarlane, Alexandria, won first place in the boys' and girls' sheep club with a Shropshire. Bernard Hein, Montevideo, and Ronald Hand, Burup, placed second and third respectively.

Arthur Raine, Marshall, placed first in the colt club contest with Wallace Perkins, Worthington, second.

Exhibits and entertainment features were to be shipped home or to other fairs today to await the opening of another Minnesota State Fair. Captain George Wilkins and Lt. Carl Ben Eielson, north pole fliers, were to broadcast over station KSTP at 2 P. M. today the plans for their projected south pole expedition. The fliers have given daily exhibitions in their famous monoplane before the grandstand.

SAVES SELF FROM MORE SERIOUS INJURY

Minneapolis, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Edward Nerhaugen saved himself from being run over by an automobile here late yesterday when he grasped the radiator cap of a car which struck him and clung on until the machine was stopped. Nerhaugen suffered several fractured ribs and a sprained ankle.

JOIN TO RID COUNTRY OF THE GANGSTER CROWD

BOTH CITIES LISTED AS CENTRAL
POINTS FOR DISTRIBUTING
LIQUOR

IT TAKES DRINKERS TO MAKE
BOOTLEGGERS, SAYS PHILADELPHIA MAYOR

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Two of the country's major cities are combining to reduce gang warfare, it became known today.

Chicago and Philadelphia, labeled with the opprobrium of being the gang centers of the country, have joined in an attempt to rid the country of gangsters.

It was revealed through District Attorney John Monaghan that Robert Brunner of Chicago had been the guest of Judge Raymond Neille and had promised co-operation from the Illinois city in the present investigation of crime in Philadelphia.

Both Chicago and Philadelphia have been listed among the centralization points for the distribution of liquor in the United States.

Meanwhile Mayor Harry Mackey appealed to the citizens of Philadelphia today to curb their "intense desire for a drink" in the interests of ridding the city of the corruption which a grand jury has found growing up around the enforcement of prohibition.

"I call upon the citizens to help the law by self denial," the mayor said. "If there were no drinkers there would be no bootleggers."

The mayor announced that henceforth police would invade private homes in their quest for evidence of liquor law violations.

Private homes suspected of having stocks of liquor, beer and wine will be raided by special officers bearing search and seizure warrants. If liquor found has been acquired illegally, the home owners may be prosecuted under the Snyder law, the state enforcement act.

NEW YORK ARREST EXPOSE TIRE SWINDLE

The arraignment yesterday of Joseph Remer, 24 years old, of 341 East 72nd street, New York, before Magistrate McAndrews in West Side court, after his arrest for misrepresenting merchandise has brought to light a nation-wide swindle in the sale of tires which is operating in a number of states.

How the tire swindlers carry out their deception on motorists by representing their wares as the products of nationally known rubber companies, but which were merely the discarded tires re-vulcanized and encased in paper wrappers, was described before court as follows:

A truck occupied by two men, draws up alongside another motor car halted in traffic. One of the men would ask the driver of the car if he wanted to buy a tire or two cheap. U. S. Royal cord being the make usually offered. They would offer to sell for $25.00, two tires priced at $25.00 each, and sometimes would reduce the price to $18.00 the pair. When the prospective purchaser showed disbelief of their statement they would tear aside some of the wrapper and show the U. S. stamp on the tire. If the motorist bought the tires he would find upon examining them that they were battered used tires and U. S. was part of the stamp "made in U. S."

The nation-wide ramifications of this form of tire swindle have prompted representatives of the United States Rubber Company to make a country-wide drive for the benefit of the rubber industry and the public, in order to halt it.

In this work the National Better Business Bureau and the Better Business Bureau of New York are giving the fullest cooperation.

It was thought the plane had fallen as it was heading westward from Columbus, Ohio, from Bettis Field, McKeesport.

Washington, Pa., Sept. 8.—(UP)—A Laird biplane, piloted by C. S. Holman of Minneapolis, in the transcontinental race for Class B planes landed today in a field five miles from here.

PRES. COOLIDGE IN RADIO SPEECH FOR HOOVER

TO SPEAK IN BEHALF OF NOMINEE AND REPUBLICAN TICKET

TO BE BROADCAST FROM WASHINGTON ON NIGHT OF
SEPT. 14

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 8.—President Coolidge will make a radio speech in behalf of Herbert Hoover and the republican ticket, to be broadcast from here probably the night of September 14, the United Press was informed today on reliable authority.

Arrangements are being made with broadcasting authorities so the president's first and only campaign address may inaugurate the program of "45 consecutive speaking nights" planned by the republican national committee.

Average crowds today will swell the attendance mark to better that of last year. Although the attendance on Friday fell below that of previous days, the attendance of the week was expected to surpass that of last year.

The attendance Friday stood at 261,618 as compared to 350,467 for the first seven days last year.

In addition to the automobile races featuring Sig Haugdahl and Lou Schneider, dirt track speeders, fair visitors were to be entertained with a program of vaudeville acts and airplane stunting.

The wedding of Dorothy Landis and Archie Phillips, both of St. Paul, in the basket of the giant captive balloon thousands of feet above the earth was also to be held today. The ceremony was postponed yesterday on account of high winds.

Children's spelling contests and judging of junior sheep and lamb entries took place Friday. Marlon Boline, 12, Meeker county, won first place in the oral spelling contest when Mae Whiting, 13, Ottitell county, spelled "sac" with a "k." George A. Selke, president of St. Cloud Teachers' College, officiated at the contest.

Other prizes were won by Lucy Barton, Pope county, third; Donald Otis, Mille Lacs county, fourth; Valme Campbell, Dodge county, fifth, and Evelyn Keister, Martin county, sixth.

Edna Erickson, Coleraine, placed first in the written spelling contest. Ethel Vesovich, Calumet, placed second and other contestants were not graded according to places.

Janet McFarlane, Alexandria, won first place in the boys' and girls' sheep club with a Shropshire. Bernard Hein, Montevideo, and Ronald Hand, Borup, placed second and third respectively.

Arthur Raine, Marshall, placed first in the colt club contest with Wallace Perkins, Worthington, second.

Exhibits and entertainment features were to be shipped home or to other fairs today to await the opening of another Minnesota State Fair. Captain George Wilkins and Lt. Carl Ben Eielson, north pole fliers, were to broadcast over station KSTP at 2 P. M. today the plans for their projected south pole expedition. The fliers have given daily exhibitions in their famous monoplane before the grandstand.

JOIN TO RID COUNTRY OF THE GANGSTER CROWD

BOTH CITIES LISTED AS CENTRAL
POINTS FOR DISTRIBUTING
LIQUOR

IT TAKES DRINKERS TO MAKE
BOOTLEGGERS, SAYS PHILADELPHIA MAYOR

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Two of the country's major cities are combining to reduce gang warfare, it became known today.

Chicago and Philadelphia, labeled with the opprobrium of being the gang centers of the country, have joined in an attempt to rid the country of gangsters.

It was revealed through District Attorney John Monaghan that Robert Brunker of Chicago had been the guest of Judge Raymond Neille and had promised co-operation from the Illinois city in the present investigation of crime in Philadelphia.

Both Chicago and Philadelphia have been listed among the centralization points for the distribution of liquor in the United States.

Meanwhile Mayor Harry Mackey appealed to the citizens of Philadelphia today to curb their "intense desire for a drink" in the interests of ridding the city of the corruption which a grand jury has found growing up around the enforcement of prohibition.

"I call upon the citizens to help the law by self denial," the mayor said. "If there were no drinkers there would be no bootleggers."

The mayor announced that henceforth police would invade private homes in their quest for evidence of liquor law violations.

Private homes suspected of having stocks of liquor, beer and wine will be raided by special officers bearing search and seizure warrants. If liquor found has been acquired illegally, the home owners may be prosecuted under the Snyder law, the state enforcement act.

NEW YORK ARREST EXPOSE TIRE SWINDLE

The arraignment yesterday of Joseph Remerre, 24 years old, of 341 East 72nd street, New York, before Magistrate McAndrews in West Side court, after his arrest for misrepresenting merchandise has brought to light a nation-wide swindle in the sale of tires which is operating in a number of states.

How the tire swindlers carry out their deception on motorists by representing their wares as the products of nationally known rubber companies, but which were merely discarded tires re-vulcanized and encased in paper wrappers, was described before court as follows:

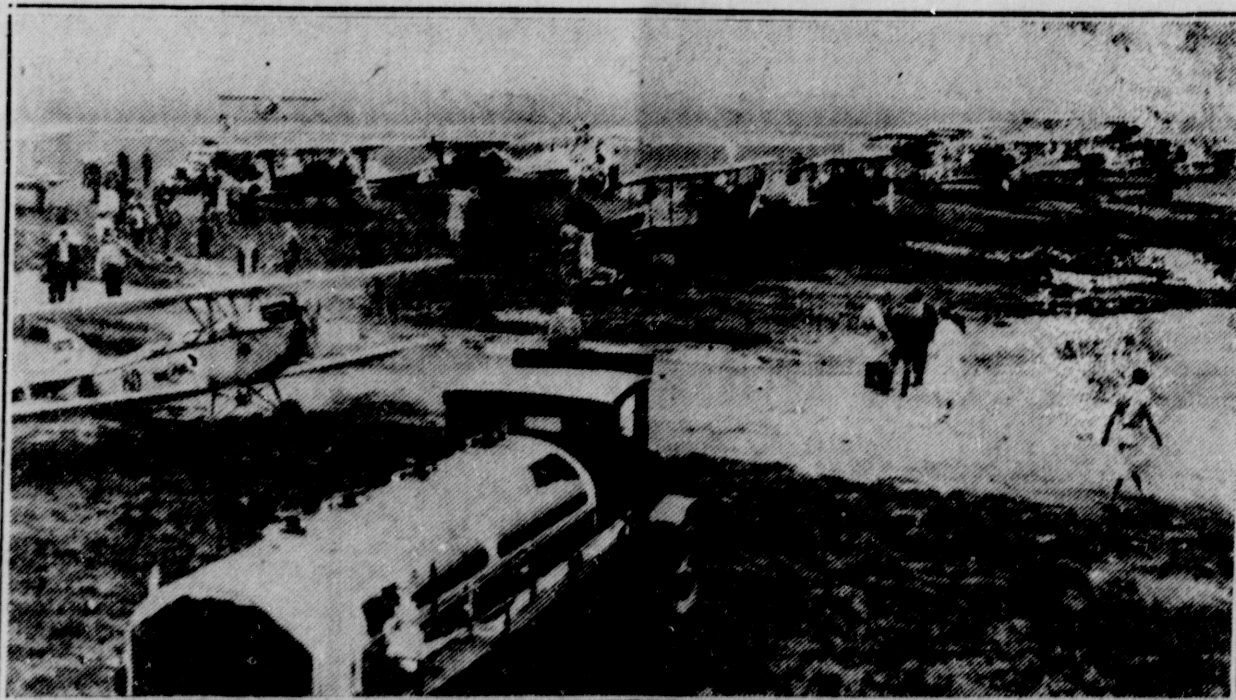

A truck occupied by two men, draws up alongside another motor car halted in traffic. One of the men would ask the driver of the car if he wanted to buy a tire or two cheap. U. S. Royal cord being the make usually offered. They would offer to sell for $25.00, two tires priced at $25.00 each, and sometimes would reduce the price to $18.00 the pair. When the prospective purchaser showed disbelief of their statement they would tear aside some of the wrapper and show the U. S. stamp on the tire. If the motorist bought the tires he would find upon examining them that they were battered used tires and U. S. was part of the stamp "made in U. S."

The nation-wide ramifications of this form of tire swindle have prompted representatives of the United States Rubber Company to make a country-wide drive for the benefit of the rubber industry and the public, in order to halt it.

In this work the National Better Business Bureau and the Better Business Bureau of New York are giving the fullest cooperation.

I. They are seen in preparation for the first leg of their race. Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kan., set the pace all the way to Fort Worth in his Cessna monoplane.

KEEPS HIS WORD

It is like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land to run across as we do occasionally, a man who keeps his word, says the Chaska Herald.

You may be able to sue on written promises and contracts put in writing, which are usually binding, but somehow the man who does not keep his word strictly is a slippery customer and it is hard to get hold of him, even with a piece of writing.

The fundamental security for a man doing what he promises is, after all, character.

If a man has character and is upright you are safer in lending him money than if he gives you a mortgage on his farm. Doing business with a liar is never satisfactory. Somehow he will attempt to wriggle out of his promises.

It is easy to detect the strictly honest person. When he owes you money he does not avoid you, but openly and frankly pays you something on account right along, if he cannot pay the whole amount.

The test of the fundamentally honest man is his punctuality in meeting his engagements or in frankly explaining to you why those engagements cannot be met.

The courts are full of people trying to evade their plain engagements.

A man who is in debt sincerely tries to meet that debt whether it hurts him or not. It is very trying and very disturbing to our faith in human nature to find a person who is always looking for alibis, always seeking explanations for not doing as he said he would do.

The good loser, the man who loses and yet is cheerful is the man who is after all one of the chief pillars of the social fabric.

SAUERKRAUT FESTIVAL

ONE of the most novel municipal affairs staged is that of the sauerkraut festival at Springfield, Minn., which is striving to merit the designation of the "Sauerkraut Capital of America."

Everything at the festival to be held September 13 is free and that includes the sauerkraut, wieners and other features of the luncheon, the speaking, music, singing, etc. The "Sauerkraut Stamper," published annually, heralds all details to the world. A veritable coffee brewery has been established to turn out 25,000 cups of coffee for the day.

No other town or city of Minnesota has put on such an annual event. Brainerd, in days past, notably when the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association was entertained, put on a complimentary fish fry. But that is a mere bagatelle when compared with the tons of sauerkraut, the gallons of coffee, the mountains of doughnuts, the forest of pickles gathered by the Springfielders for free distribution.

Springfield is the acme of hospitality that day. All it asks of you is that you bring your appetite.

VANISHING CREDIT

BUSINESS on a purely cash basis is the crying need of the age and a basic principle which must be adopted by every business institution if it wishes to survive, is the opinion of Congressman Frank Clague, of Redwood Falls.

Speaking at the Second district editorial banquet at Fairmont but recently, Congressman Clague pointed out the evils of the old method of credit, and predicted that within five years every business institution would have to accept the new plan or go out of business.

People generally will not accept the statement of the Congressman, for people as a usual thing dislike to change their way of doing business. But, his words are as true as the sun rises and sets.

Abuse of the privileges of credit extended by merchants has ruined thousands and abuse of the privileges given them has forced thousands of debtors to take the bankruptcy cure.—Pope County Tribune.

DUCK SHOOTING

THE duck shooting season opens Sunday, September 16. We anticipate such a flock of hunters that they may outnumber the birds they are shooting at.

Advance reports indicate a good crop of ducks, fat and luscious. That is one crop that no one objects when there is a surplus.

Hunters are training their dogs to the peak of perfection and getting their guns and ammunition in readiness. The fact that opening day is a Sunday insures the attendance of about everybody able to buy, borrow or otherwise get a gun for the occasion.

PEOPLE who profess to understand forestry problems declare the state can well afford to take over a section of the swamp area for reforestation purposes. The Bemidji Daily Pioneer asserts it is too big a problem for a county to handle alone, but it is without doubt an investment that would yield big returns to the state.

If you have been wondering about the size of Lake of the Woods, it is 90 miles long and 60 wide, and has 14,000 islands thrown in to make it look better. There are quite a few paulfuls of water in that puddle, if anybody should ask you, says the Baudette Region.

THERE are 100 species of mushrooms that are not poisonous, but nevertheless people will pick up the poisonous ones. The deadly ones growing in Minnesota include Amanita Phloides, Amanita Muscaria, Amanita Citrina and the Phlorescent Jack-O-Lantern.

TEN foreign countries, the 48 states, and eight Canadian provinces sent tourists to Minneapolis in the month of June. These figures are based on registration records at the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association's Gateway information bureau.

How any official of a church mission board could appropriate a million dollars and cloud detection for a long time passes our understanding. Evidently the mission board was lax in supervising or auditing accounts.

LAKE Ontario threw cold water on its Wrigley swimming race and no contestant was able to finish.

It is amusing to see an old bachelor holding a baby, especially if the baby is about 18.—Newark (Ohio) Advocate.

It's fun to shop with Sally

"Shop" is scarcely the word to say—she's so assured and jaunty about it. You love to go along. Her clothes are quite the thing as she swings expectantly down the street. Her complexion is young, lovely. And so eager, alert, is her gay, clean mind that into this shop she hastens, then out with a bundle. Into that shop, then out with another. "Yes, this is the right cold cream," selecting the simplest of two jars—the white, fluffy insides looking alike, equally fragrant. You'd think her rather casual about her purchases, till home again she unwraps the finest powder money can buy. The cake of soap kindest for Sally's skin. Sheer chiffon hose of wonderful wear. And they prove the finest powder, kindest soap, longest wearing sheer hose.

Every shop trip Sally makes is a triumphant adventure. Out of magazines and newspapers she gathers the news that means getting what she wants, in the style and quality she wants it, at a price it is right to expect to pay. She never wishes after she's bought one thing that she'd considered longer and bought another. For Sally is sure. She has faith in her own good judgment and taste. Her choices come from an easy, happy survey of all that is buyable.

Sally reads the advertisements and remembers their news.

If you read the advertisements regularly, you can appraise what you buy with the clear, calm judgment of a professional

It's fun
to shop with Sally

"Shop" is scarcely the word to say—she's so assured and jaunty about it. You love to go along. Her clothes are quite the thing as she swings expectantly down the street. Her complexion is young, lovely. And so eager, alert, is her gay, clean mind that into this shop she hastens, then out with a bundle. Into that shop, then out with another. "Yes, this is the right cold cream," selecting the simplest of two jars—the white, fluffy insides looking alike, equally fragrant. You'd think her rather casual about her purchases, till home again she unwraps the finest powder money can buy. The cake of soap kindest for Sally's skin. Sheer chiffon hose of wonderful wear. And they prove the finest powder, kindest soap, longest wearing sheer hose.

Every shop trip Sally makes is a triumphant adventure. Out of magazines and newspapers she gathers the news that means getting what she wants, in the style and quality she wants it, at a price it is right to expect to pay. She never wishes after she's bought one thing that she'd considered longer and bought another. For Sally is sure. She has faith in her own good judgment and taste. Her choices come from an easy, happy survey of all that is buyable.

Sally reads the advertisements and remembers their news.

If you read the advertisements regularly, you can appraise what you buy with the clear, calm judgment

ATHLETICS STAGE GREATEST UPHILL FIGHT IN HISTORY

STARTED IN 2 MONTHS AGO AFTER YANKEES

COMPETITION IS STRONG FOR FOOTBALL POSITIONS

NEW YORK TEAM AT THAT TIME HAD A 12-GAME LEAD

DOUBLE WIN AT BOSTON YESTERDAY EVENED TWO CONTENDERS

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—The Philadelphia Athletics tied the American League pennant race for the first time this season today when they defeated the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 6, after ten innings of the first game of a double header.

The standings for the American League now reads:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Philadelphia	88	47	.652
New York	87	47	.650

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 8.—The Philadelphia Athletics are tied today with the New York Yankees for first place in the American League.

Behind this simple statement of fact lies the drama of one of the greatest uphill fights in the history of baseball.

Starting in two months ago to overtake the world's champions, at a time when the Yankees were swinging along out in front with a twelve game lead, the Mackmen cut down their rivals' advantage slowly but surely until a double victory at Boston yesterday while the Senators were winning two games at New York left the pennant contenders exactly even.

The standings are:

	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	87	47	.650
Philadelphia	87	47	.650

Each team has twenty more games to play, both finishing on the road, where the Athletics have shown decidedly better than the Yankees this season.

Before they go into the west, however, the Yanks and Mackmen will play four games at New York, starting with a double-header Sunday. Upon the outcome of this series, the American League championship of 1928 largely depends.

The Athletics have a double-header with the Boston Red Sox scheduled for today; the Yankees a single game with the Senators, who already have taken three games out of four during the current series. Two victories over the Red Sox today will enable the Mackmen to come to the Yankee stadium leading the league, no matter what the outcome of the Washington-New York game.

Discarding the veterans, the Cobbs and Speakers and Collinses, who made his club a colorful but impotent factor in the first half of the season, Connie Mack has remade the Athletics by judicious use of youngsters.

Connie has developed an amazing ball club which is the most versatile in the game, and is only just beginning to find itself.

Haas, Simmons and Miller, the outfield of the Athletics, once Connie got through experimenting with Cobb and Speaker, have made Philadelphia fans forget those picturesque veterans. Ty and Tris and Eddie Collins have joined Kid Gleason on the Athletics' board of strategy, while the youngsters who filled their places are out there winning baseball games.

From now on, outside of New York, fans will be rooting for the Mackmen, who, if they win the pennant, will carry into the world series some of the flame of combat which has been lacking of late years since the machine-age dynasty of the Yankees was established.

PHILADELPHIA IS BASEBALL MAD TODAY

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—Philadelphia today was baseball mad. Nothing but the Athletics interested the large majority of the populace of the Quaker City.

Many thousands were making final preparations to go to New York for the double-header between the Athletics and Yankees Sunday at Yankee stadium.

With the Athletics tied with the Yankees for the lead, Philadelphia fans were cocksure that Connie Mack's club would win its first pennant since 1914.

LOCAL Y GROUP LOSES TO PEQUOT GRADE SCHOOL

The Comrade group of the Brainerd Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon lost to the Pequot grades by the score of 16 to 8 in a well played baseball game at Pequot.

Pequot scored seven runs in the opening inning due to errors on the part of the locals. The Brainerd team scored three in the second and five in the sixth.

ATHLETICS TIE N. Y. YANKEES IN LEAGUE RACE

New York, Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—The Philadelphia Athletics tied the New York Yankees in the American League race Friday by defeating the Boston Red Sox in two games while the Yankees were losing a double-header to the Washington Senators.

The St. Louis Cardinals maintained a four and one-half game lead over the Chicago Cubs by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates while the Cubs were winning from the Cincinnati Reds.

BLUE AND WHITE BOYS WORK HARD FOR MILACA TILT

FUNDAMENTALS TO BE CARRIED ON NEXT WEEK TO LINEUP FOR FIRST GAME

AGGRESSIVENESS TO BE DECIDED FACTOR IN SELECTING MEN FOR LINE

Football practice was held this morning in order to get the Blue and White warriors in shape for the Milaca game which will be played two weeks from this afternoon.

The work will have to be hurried along at a fast pace, getting the men ready earlier in the season than was done last year.

The Milaca game will not be a conference game but will give plenty of opposition as it must be remembered that they gave Brainerd a good game last year. Brainerd defeated Milaca last year only at the last part of the game when the Milaca team held the Brainerd stars throughout the game.

As the prospects line up at the present time the success of this year's team will depend a great deal on the new, inexperienced linemen.

Many new candidates are fighting for the open line positions. In fact every man on the squad went after the man with the ball this morning with a determination that each one was going after a position on the team. Competition will be keen for every position on the team and the reserve strength should be equally as strong.

Fundamentals will be carried on at the early part of next week to determine which men will line up in the regular position for the first game. The slow developers may not show up in time to be ready for the first game but should be ready to come forth in later encounters.

The following men are trying out for the backfield: Captain Earl Fuller, John Gabion, Wise, L. Swanson, Halvorsen, Dybvik, Clarkson, Sundberg, Mayo, Marshall, Templeton, Clausen and Joe Gabion.

The following men are still taking drills that include both line and backfield combination, and may be used in either positions depending on how they develop and how much they will be needed in one place or the other. Guin, Art Hautala, Hoffbauer, Cass and Kleven.

The following men are battling for line positions in which there are seven positions open: Fox, Goedderz, Paine, Garvey, G. McCaffrey, Schuety, Abrahamson, Foster, Armstrong, Geist, Lammon, Patterson, Masters, Wyatt, H. McCaffrey, Field, Caughey, Moe, Les Swanson, Jenkins, Creger, A. Nelson, Spillman, Coenan, Luken, Dutkowski, Larson, Ray Nelson, S. Anderson, Dryburgh, Cass, Trommald, Weber, E. Foster, Hanson, Leon and Kangas.

Aggressiveness will be a decided factor in determining who will get the call in the line positions. At the present time the majority of the candidates lack poise and aggressiveness and a great deal of polish will have to be added until the team will compare to that of a year ago.

Practices will continue regularly next week. No time was lost last week for practices started Tuesday afternoon, the first day of school, and continued through to this morning.

TAKE NINE ROUNDS OF 10-ROUND BOUT AT DETROIT

Detroit, Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., lightweight, took nine rounds of a ten-round bout with Pete Latzo of Scranton, Penn., former welterweight champion, here last night.

Latoz retreated time after time from Lomski's weaving left-handed attack. The scranton fighter made an effort to rally in the tenth after most of his energy was gone, but his punches lacked force.

In the National league race the St. Louis Cardinals held a four and one-half game lead by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 6 to 3.

After the Philadelphia Phillies shut out the Boston Braves 4 to 0 in the first game, the Phillies weakened in the nightcap and lost a 4 to 3 decision.

SEEKS TO SWIM THE CHANNEL FROM ENGLAND TO FRANCE

Dover, Eng., Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—Horace Carey started today on an attempt to swim from west to east across the English channel to win the Dover gold cup.

If Carey accomplishes the feat, he will be the fourth man to swim the channel from England to France. All others who have made the swim have started on the French side, and followed the easier east-west route.

Dr. Dorothy Logan, who reported in 1927 that she had swum the channel, only to reveal later that it was a hoax, accompanied Carey in a rowboat. Carey trained her for her channel swim.

D. QUIN HALL.

NOW that the Olympic games are all over it might be just as well to refer again to some of our outstanding stars who failed to make the trip.

Once more the United States won the classic and the Stars and Stripes floated triumphantly over the field—if not over the track.

Our fellows ran into some mighty keen competition in the events so recently staged in Amsterdam. In fact, in the track events the competition was far too keen for your Uncle Samuel, and while we had banked on a good many firsts in these contests we only cashed in on one bet, Barbut being the lone eagle to cop in a track event, not counting the relays.

And while it's natural to offer alibis, it's sporting to admit that the United States ran into a hum-bleebs' nest—and let it go at that. Maybe it would have been better if our athletes had gone to Amsterdam to do their conditioning instead of doing so much preliminary con-testing over here. Maybe we were overconfident. Maybe the boys ate too much ice cream. Maybe—but what of it? The games are over, and while the United States won, they certainly didn't make any wow of a showing on the tracks.

The Jinx seemed to be plucking at Uncle Sam's coat tails even before the trip started and a second Olympic team could easily have been mustered from the "left behinds." Imagine an Olympic team without Matt McGrath, Jim McEcherson and Pat McDonald on the list in the weight events! All veterans, but swamped by an up-rising of youthful strength.

The casualty rate among the hurdlers was especially high. Chuck Werner of the Illinois A. S., with sectional tryouts ran in brilliant time, never could get started in Cambridge. Weems Baskin, N. Y. A. C. star, was shut out and Ross Nichols, great hurdler from Stanford, had the misfortune to stumble on the last hurdle in the final tryout. Dan Kinsey, the Olympic 110-metre champion, also failed to make the grade, and the same fate awaited Dick Pomroy.

Among the sprinters Hasey and Simpson ranked with the best prior to the final tryouts, but Hasey failed to make the grade and Simpson, the Ohio State star, after winning his heat in world record time, sprained his ankle, and had to be left behind when the boat pulled away from the pier.

Another disappointed athlete was Falt Elkins, our greatest decathlete, who sustained a leg injury on the eve of the final try-outs and thereby was prevented from competing in the Olympics.

Bill Cox, intercollegiate cross country champion and a member of the last Olympic team, was beaten in this attempt at the mile and George Lermond, who was looked upon as a sure entry abroad, failed both in the 5,000 and 10,000 metres. Sam Martin, who on two occasions has pushed Lloyd Hahn to new records, was shut out in his heat in the 800-metre run. He wanted to make the trip so badly that he went out afterward for the 10,000 metre run, and while he did not succeed in placing for a position in the event, he at least finished the distance, which feat, in itself, is considered quite an accomplishment for a half-mile.

Others, who on past performances stood out as almost sure choices in the final try-outs, were doomed to disappointment and, as a result, enough material was left behind when the boat pulled out for Amsterdam to make up a second team which might have fared almost as well as the one which represented the United States in the Olympics.

BLUE AND WHITE BOYS WORK HARD FOR MILACA TILT

FUNDAMENTALS TO BE CARRIED ON NEXT WEEK TO LINEUP FOR FIRST GAME

AGGRESSIVENESS TO BE DECIDED FACTOR IN SELECTING MEN FOR LINE

Football practice was held this morning in order to get the Blue and White warriors in shape for the Milaca game which will be played two weeks from this afternoon.

The work will have to be hurried along at a fast pace, getting the men ready earlier in the season than was done last year.

The Milaca game will not be a conference game but will give plenty of opposition as it must be remembered that they gave Brainerd a good game last year. Brainerd defeated Milaca last year only at the last part of the game when the Milaca team held the Brainerd stars throughout the game.

As the prospects line up at the present time the success of this year's team will depend a great deal on the new, inexperienced linemen. Many new candidates are fighting for the open line positions. In fact every man on the squad went after the man with the ball this morning with a determination that each one was going after a position on the team. Competition will be keen for every position on the team and the reserve strength should be equally as strong.

Fundamentals will be carried on at the early part of next week to determine which men will line up in the regular position for the first game. The slow developers may not show up in time to be ready for the first game but should be ready to come forth in later encounters.

The following men are trying out for the backfield: Captain Earl Fuller, John Gabion, Wise, L. Swanson, Halvorsen, Dybvik, Clarkson, Sundberg, Mayo, Marshall, Templeton, Clausen and Joe Gabion.

The following men are still taking drills that include both line and backfield combination, and may be used in either positions depending on how they develop and how much they will be needed in one place or the other. Guin, Art Hautala, Hoffbauer, Cass and Kleven.

The following men are battling for line positions in which there are seven positions open: Fox, Goedderz, Paine, Garvey, G. McCaffrey, Schuetz, Abrahamson, Foster, Armstrong, Geist, Lammon, Patterson, Masters, Wyatt, H. McCaffrey, Field, Caughey, Moe, Les Swanson, Jenkins, Creger, A. Nelson, Spillman, Coenan, Luken, Dutkowski, Larson, Ray Nelson, S. Anderson, Dryburgh, Cass, Trommald, Weber, E. Foster, Hanson, Leon and Kangas.

Aggressiveness will be a decided factor in determining who will get the call in the line positions. At the present time the majority of the candidates lack poise and aggressiveness and a great deal of polish will have to be added until the team will compare to that of a year ago.

Practices will continue regularly next week. No time was lost last week for practice started Tuesday afternoon, the first day of school, and continued through to this morning.

LOMSKI WINS OVER LATZO

TAKE NINE ROUNDS OF 10-ROUND BOUT AT DETROIT

Detroit, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., lightweight, took nine rounds of a ten-round bout with Pete Latzo of Scranton, Penn., former welterweight champion, here last night.

Latoz retreated time after time from Lomski's weaving lefthanded attack. The scranton fighter made an effort to rally in the tenth after most of his energy was gone, but his punches lacked force.

The Philadelphia Athletics downed the Boston Red Sox in a double-header

1 to 0 and 7 to 3 and went into a tie with the New York Yankees for first place in the American league.

In the National league race the St. Louis Cardinals held a four and one-half game lead by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 6 to 3.

After the Philadelphia Phillies shut out the Boston Braves 4 to 0 in the first game, the Phillies weakened in the nightcap and lost a 4 to 3 decision.

SEEKS TO SWIM THE CHANNEL FROM ENGLAND TO FRANCE

Dover, Eng., Sept. 8.—(UP)—Horace Carey started today on an attempt to swim from west to east across the English channel to win the Dover gold cup.

If Carey accomplishes the feat, he will be the fourth man to swim the channel from England to France. All others who have made the swim have started on the French side, and followed the easier east-west route.

Dr. Dorothy Logan, who reported in 1927 that she had swum the channel, only to reveal later that it was a hoax, accompanied Carey in a rowboat. Carey trained her for her channel swim.

Disappointed Athletes

ROSS NICHOLS
AFTER SHOWING HIS SUPERIORITY OVER OUR BEST TIMBER-TOPPERS, NICHOLS TRIPPED AND FELL OVER THE LAST HURDLE IN THE FINAL OLYMPIC TRY-OUTS!

QUIN HALL
NOW that the Olympic games are all over it might be just as well to refer again to some of our outstanding stars who failed to make the trip.

Once more the United States won the classic and the Stars and Stripes floated triumphantly over the field—if not over the track.

Our fellows ran into some mighty keen competition in the events so recently staged in Amsterdam. In fact, in the track events the competition was far too keen for your Uncle Samuel, and while we had banked on a good many firsts in these contests we only cashed in on one bet, Barbuti being the lone eagle to cop in a track event, not counting the relays.

And while it's natural to offer alibis, it's sporting to admit that the United States ran into a hum-bleebs' nest—and let it go at that. Maybe it would have been better if our athletes had gone to Amsterdam to do their conditioning instead of doing so much preliminary contesting over here. Maybe we were overconfident. Maybe the boys ate too much ice cream. Maybe—but what of it? The games are over, and while the United States won, they certainly didn't make any wow of a showing on the tracks.

The Jinx seemed to be plucking at Uncle Sam's coat tails even before the trip started and a second Olympic team could easily have been mustered from the "left behinds." Imagine an Olympic team without Matt McGrath, Jim McEcheron and Pat McDonald on the list in the weight events! All veterans, but swamped by an up-rising of youthful strength.

The casualty rate among the hurdlers was especially high. Chuck Werner of the Illinois A. S., with sectional tryouts run in brilliant time, never could get started in Cambridge. Weems Baskin, N. Y. A. C. star, was shut out from Stanford, had the misfortune to stumble on the last hurdle in the final tryout. Dan Kinsey, the Olympic 110-metre champion, also failed to make the grade, and the same fate awaited Dick Pomeroy.

Among the sprinters Halsey and Simpson ranked with the best prior to the final tryouts, but Halsey failed to make the grade and Simpson, the Ohio State star, after winning his heat in world record time, sprained his ankle, and had to be left behind when the boat pulled away from the pier.

Another disappointed athlete was Falt Elkins, our greatest decathlon, who sustained a leg injury on the eve of the final tryouts and thereby was prevented from competing in the Olympics.

Bill Cox, intercollegiate cross country champion and a member of the last Olympic team, was beaten in this attempt at the mile and George Lermond, who was looked upon as a sure entry abroad, failed both in the 5,000 and 10,000 metres. Sam Martin, who on two occasions has pushed Lloyd Hahn to new records, was shut out in his heat in the 800-metre run. He wanted to make the trip so badly that he went out afterward for the 10,000 metre run, and while he did not succeed in placing for a position in the event, he at least finished the distance, which feat, in itself, is considered quite an accomplishment for a half-mile.

Others, who on past performances stood out as almost sure choices in the final try-outs, were doomed to disappointment and, as a result, enough material was left behind when the boat pulled out for Amsterdam to make up a second team which might have fared almost as well as the one which represented the United States in the Olympics.

PROPOSED LUM PARK BASEBALL DIAMOND STARTED THIS WEEK

SPACE OF 400 FEET SQUARE ALREADY CLEARED IN NEW SECTION OF PARK

PLAN IS TO PROVIDE SUITABLE PLAYING FIELD FOR JUNIOR TEAMS OF THE CITY

The Park board has cleared a space 400 feet square in the new part of Lum Park and a ditch is being constructed at the present time preparatory to making the cleared space into a baseball diamond. The ground lies unusually high and the members of the Park board promise that it will not be water soaked even in the worst weather.

No grandstand will be erected at the present time, but the erection of a fence is being considered.

The Park board states that the new diamond is not being constructed to interfere with the present city diamond. The purpose seems to be to construct a suitable place for the junior teams of the city. It will be a place where the older teams may practice if they wish and it will be a spot where a large number of cars can be parked during large gatherings at Lum Park.

SIX SCHOOL LOTS SELL FOR $11,500

Archie Falconer, West Brainerd, is Successful Bidder for Purchase of School Property

ONE OTHER BID ENTERED

Syreen Oil Co. Offers $10,500; Board to Call for Proposals in Wrecking High School

The Brainerd school board at a regular adjourned meeting Wednesday evening last evening opened bids for the purchase of the six school lots on the northeast corner of Oak and Laurel streets, the successful bidder being Archie Falconer, West Brainerd, who tendered a bid of $11,500 for the property.

The bid accepted by the board was $1,000 in advance of the price offered by the Syreen Oil Co. whose bid was $10,500.

On motion the bid of Mr. Falconer was accepted. Permission was granted the board of education to dispose of the lots at the special school election in June.

Mr. Croft of the firm of Croft and Boerner, designing the new high school building was present and submitted blue prints showing the progress being made towards completion of the plans of the high school building.

It was estimated that plans will not be completed for at least six weeks with advertising for the bids for the construction of the building, about November 1. Following that, contractors will have at least three weeks to figure on the plans before submitting bids.

While the board realizes that the people are becoming impatient at the lack of actual construction of the building but it must be remembered, members said, that the architects are doing all in their power to speed up plans. It must be remembered however that accuracy in plans are essential before bids can be advertised for.

The board last evening decided to advertise for proposals to be received at an adjourned meeting, Sept. 21 for the tearing down of the ruins of the old Washington building, clearing the brick and piling them off to one side as well as clearing the property of all debris. The proposal specifies that the brick will remain the property of the Brainerd school district and all other debris to go to the contractor making the proposal to tear down the ruins.

A proposal will also be advertised for the tearing down of the ruins of the old Washington, and clearing of the property, all salvage and debris to be the property of the contractor. Unless proposals are received by the board in the way of moderate figures, it is highly probable that the board will not award a contract for the wrecking of the building, it being the firm contention of the architects that it would be to the decided advantage of the board to allow the general contractors to figure in the ruins of the old Washington school building.

DIES FROM HEART TROUBLE

William Mitchell Instructs Friends to Sell His Household Goods to Pay Burial Expenses

Neighbors today came to the defense of the memory of William Mitchell who asserted that he had attempted in his own way to provide sufficient money to take care of his burial.

In the pockets of the man when found dead from heart trouble in his little home on the shore of Emily Lake by neighbors was a note requesting his friends to dispose of his household goods to pay for the costs of his funeral.

At the funeral, they said, flowers had been contributed by neighboring farmers.

Mr. Mitchell was 77 years old at the time of his death. His family, a wife and four children, had predeceased him. Papers giving the location of his brother in Missouri permitted friends to notify the man's kin.

SIX SCHOOL LOTS SELL FOR $11,500

Archie Falconer, West Brainerd, is Successful Bidder for Purchase of School Property

ONE OTHER BID ENTERED

Syreen Oil Co. Offers $10,500; Board to Call for Proposals in Wrecking High School

The Brainerd school board at a regular adjourned meeting Wednesday evening last evening opened bids for the purchase of the six school lots on the northeast corner of Oak and Laurel streets, the successful bidder being Archie Falconer, West Brainerd, who tendered a bid of $11,500 for the property.

The bid accepted by the board was $1,000 in advance of the price offered by the Syreen Oil Co. whose bid was $10,500.

On motion the bid of Mr. Falconer was accepted. Permission was granted the board of education to dispose of the lots at the special school election in June.

Mr. Croft of the firm of Croft and Boerner, designing the new high school building was present and submitted blue prints showing the progress being made towards completion of the plans of the high school building.

It was estimated that plans will not be completed for at least six weeks with advertising for the bids for the construction of the building, about November 1. Following that, contractors will have at least three weeks to figure on the plans before submitting bids.

While the board realizes that the people are becoming impatient at the lack of actual construction of the building but it must be remembered, members said, that the architects are doing all in their power to speed up plans. It must be remembered however that accuracy in plans are essential before bids can be advertised for.

The board last evening decided to advertise for proposals to be received at an adjourned meeting, Sept. 21 for the tearing down of the ruins of the old Washington building, clearing the brick and piling them off to one side as well as clearing the property of all debris. The proposal specifies that the brick will remain the property of the Brainerd school district and all other debris to go to the contractor making the proposal to tear down the ruins.

A proposal will also be advertised for the tearing down of the ruins of the old Washington, and clearing of the property, all salvage and debris to be the property of the contractor. Unless proposals are received by the board in the way of moderate figures, it is highly probable that the board will not award a contract for the wrecking of the building, it being the firm contention of the architects that it would be to the decided advantage of the board to allow the general contractors to figure in the ruins of the old Washington school building.

DIES FROM HEART TROUBLE

William Mitchell Instructs Friends to Sell His Household Goods to Pay Burial Expenses

Neighbors today came to the defense of the memory of William Mitchell who asserted that he had attempted in his own way to provide sufficient money to take care of his burial.

In the pockets of the man when found dead from heart trouble in his little home on the shore of Emily Lake by neighbors was a note requesting his friends to dispose of his household goods to pay for the costs of his funeral.

At the funeral, they said, flowers had been contributed by neighboring farmers.

Mr. Mitchell was 77 years old at the time of his death. His family, a wife and four children, had predeceased him. Papers giving the location of his brother in Missouri permitted friends to notify the man's kin.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is an idler and a spendthrift, so Janet has a hard time mothering both of them. Although the father's income is large, he is constantly in hot water. On the eve of a great opening night he is thrown into a rage by a creditor and has a heart attack. Janet, on the same day, goes to luncheon with Gordon Pryor, a young but impecunious actor, who proposes to her. She accepts, but in the restaurant she meets a young musician who excites the actor's jealousy. This man, Leonard Quigg, attracts Janet greatly. She and Gordon Pryor attend the big "first night," which her father hopes will prove the crowning triumph of his life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

JANET was home in time to receive a telephone call from her father's dresser, an arrangement which had existed for a long time.

"I have heard him ask seven people, Miss Janet, who wasn't on your list," the man informed her. "Mr. Wilde is considerable hot up—nervous-like, but in his best mood. He left the theatre—a whole line of taxis just before I phoned you."

"I told you so, Elizabeth!" Janet smiled at that devoted woman. "Father's done it again, and I only hope there is enough food."

"Don't you worry, Miss Janet," Elizabeth reassured her. "I knew what he'd do—and I could take care of half Broadway tonight."

At last a line of taxis drew up outside the house, and Fenimore Wilde entered with a group of his admirers.

"One or two friends of mine have been good enough to come back with me, my child," Janet's father remarked, as he put his arms about her. "You can find them a mouthful to eat!"

Janet kissed her forehead while her hand caressed his beautiful silver hair.

"You were better than you have ever been before, and I was thrilled to think I was the daughter of such an actor."

"So my little girl liked me—did she?" he said with a great humility. He turned to a group of people who surrounded him. "Most of you know my daughter Janet. She is kind enough to have liked my performance tonight."

Janet paused, waiting. She knew it would come—and come it did. "Janet is my severest critic," Fenimore Wilde remarked as though he had never said it before. "When she is satisfied, then I know I wasn't as bad as I always think I am."

But the room was filled with people. Peter was busy serving trays of cocktails. The great critic, Augustus Slade, was smiling at George Willis, an equally great actress, who refused to grow old. Friedrich Leipzig, the German-American philosopher, towered in his bulk above his fellow-guests, a monacle glued to his distinguished face—full, like the moon. He was glancing down at his own feet, and remarked to Lillian Copeland, famed more for her beauty than for her acting:

"The world of men, dear lady, is sharply divided into two classes—

those who wear white socks and those who are beloved by women."

"And you," the stage beauty smiled up at him, "belong to both classes at once."

There were many more of them—Norton Penton, wearing his toupee, and rightly believing that, in the early fifties, he was still a matinee idol; James P. Ford, noted for the acid of his theatrical reviews, and looking more like a boy actor than a middle-aged critic, good-looking and charming, and—among the strangers to the house—New York's most spectacular young surgeon, the celebrated Dr. David Churchill, who had been brought there by Friedrich Leipzig.

He was introduced to Janet, and she felt instinctively that she liked David Churchill. He was only thirty-six, and astonishingly young to have achieved such fame in the world of surgery. He was above medium height, and wore tortoiseshell rimmed spectacles, while his hands were large, and, Janet thought, dreadfully capable!

"I feel like a fish, Miss Wilde," the surgeon confided in her. "Out of water?" Janet asked. "Try a cocktail!" She signed to Peter.

"Can't," he laughed. "I perform, in my way, tomorrow morning—so I can't even try a little alcohol. But will you tell me how it is that I find myself among so many celebrities?"

"Is this modesty?" Janet chaffed him. "I know less of your world than you can possibly know of ours, and yet even I have heard of you. So the modesty is the same kind as that of my dear father."

"He is charming," David Churchill smiled at her. "Rather like a child—if I dare say so to his daughter."

"Exactly like a child," Janet began, when she turned to listen to what Gordon was saying to her father.

"I am a nobody in the theatre, Mr. Wilde," Gordon was saying, in tones of hushed awe. "But even I am vain enough to think that I know a little about your profession. May I tell you, then, that you were a revelation of dramatic art to-night, and that I can never thank you sufficiently?"

Even Janet held her breath in suspense. She knew that her father would take flattery by the shovel, but wasn't this a little too gross?

But she need not have worried. Fenimore Wilde smiled benignly. He had swallowed it all, and was delighted with Gordon.

"You are very kind to an old man, Mr. Pryor—just an old actor who has achieved some slight success, and who is always grateful to anyone good enough to say that he has not altogether failed."

"Can you beat it!" Janet turned to her new friend. "Dr. Churchill—is there any flattery a famous actor won't swallow?"

"I like flattery myself," he confessed. "Any time another doctor intimates that I'm not so bad—I like it all right!"

Peter came into the room and whispered to Fenimore Wilde. Janet saw her father hurry out into the hall, and wishing to save him from any possible annoyance, she followed him.

In the hall stood a shabby, and rather tragic figure. He was a man past sixty, with long gray hair and all the hall-marks of the old-fashioned tragedian.

"Matthew Drake, as I live!" Fenimore Wilde exclaimed heartily. "Matthew, it warms my heart to see you."

"Spoken as I would have you speak, Fenimore," the old man's voice rolled through the house. "Others might have imagined that at the height of your fame, Fenimore, you would have forgotten just an old friend—a man persistently kept down by ill-fortune."

"Forget you!" Fenimore returned, shaking both the other's hands. "But come on in! A few friends of mine are here, as they are kind enough to like what I did tonight."

But the old man drew back. "No, Fenimore," he said in a lower voice. "I would not be a death's head at your fest. I am not in the mood for strangers, but if you could—I happen to be temporarily embarrassed—waiting for a check—but if you could let me have ten dollars—I would."

"I refuse absolutely," Fenimore Wilde said as he dived into his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills. "How dare you, Matthew, ask an old friend for ten? What am I? An actor—or a pawnbroker? I shall be honored if you will let me act as your banker, and, peeling off some bills, he thrust a hundred dollars into the old man's hand, and then attended him to the door with as much ceremony as though he had been John Montague himself.

Janet's eyes misted with tears. "You're very dear, Father."

They had all gathered at supper, and raising a glass of champagne, Augustus Slade proposed his host's health.

Fenimore Wilde rose to reply. "My friends," he said, in his musical voice, "tonight forms almost a turning-point in my career when I look around me and—"

Janet saw her father's face turn a grey-green in color. His hand went to his throat, and then, after a ghastly second, Fenimore Wilde crashed face down over the supper-table, and lay still.

Fenimore Wilde had delivered his last lines.

DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES AFFECTS FARMERS

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT MAKES PUBLIC ITS MONTHLY REVIEW

WHEAT FARMERS SHOWING DISPOSITION TO WITHHOLD CROP FROM MARKET

Washington, Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—A decline in wheat prices has affected income of thousands of growers in western states, the agriculture department's monthly review said today.

Prospects are for larger yields of several principal crops than anticipated earlier in the season, the review said, with indications of lowered prices for these products.

Wheat farmers are showing a disposition to withhold their crop from market because of the low prices. Considerable winter wheat, however, went to the elevators last month at prices of from 75 to 85 cents a bushel to growers.

Reports from about 20,000 farmers indicate intentions to decrease acreage of wheat this fall about two per cent below last year's sowings. The chief reductions are foreseen in the corn belt.

The declining market for wheat has been shared also by corn and potatoes.

Beef-cattle producers are once again in strong position, the department said. Prices for hogs are believed on the upswing and the dairy industry is in "relatively good shape" with milk prices at the highest level since 1920.

The general index of purchasing power of farm products remained at 93 during July, as compared with a pre-war figure of 100. This is close to the highest point reached since 1920, the review added.

Succulent Triumph

Apple pie was never invented. It is a natural and inevitable product of evolution. It is a survival of the sweetest. In the dim dark ages before the dawn of civilization mankind groped among the berry bushes and the weeds for sustenance, and was duly thankful for life. Fire came, and cooking. Ancient civilizations developed the art. At last came the day when apple pie was baked. Since then the art has continued, but has not advanced.—Exchange.

CHAPTER VIII.
JANET was home in time to receive a telephone call from her father's dresser, an arrangement which had existed for a long time.

"I have heard him ask seven people, Miss Janet, who wasn't on your list," the man informed her. "Mr. Wilde is considerable hot up—nervous-like, but in his best mood. He left the theatre—a whole line of taxis just before I phoned you."

"I told you so, Elizabeth!" Janet smiled at that devoted woman. "Father's done it again, and I only hope there is enough food."

"Don't you worry, Miss Janet," Elizabeth reassured her. "I knew what he'd do—and I could take care of half Broadway tonight."

At last a line of taxis drew up outside the house, and Fenimore Wilde entered with a group of his admirers.

"One or two friends of mine have been good enough to come back with me, my child," Janet's father remarked, as he put his arms about her. "You can find them a mouthful to eat?"

Janet kissed his forehead while her hand caressed his beautiful silver hair.

"You were better than you have ever been before, and I was thrilled to think I was the daughter of such an actor."

"So my little girl liked me—did she?" he said with a great humility. He turned to a group of people who surrounded him. "Most of you know my daughter Janet. She is kind enough to have liked my performance tonight."

Janet paused, waiting. She knew it would come—and come it did. "Janet is my severest critic," Fenimore Wilde remarked as though he had never said it before. "When she is satisfied, then I know I wasn't as bad as I always think I am."

But the room was filled with people. Peter was busy serving trays of cocktails. The great critic, Augustus Slade, was smiling at George Willis, an equally great actress, who refused to grow old. Friedrich Leipzig, the German-American philosopher, towered in his bulk above his fellow-guests, a monocle glued to his distinguished face—full, like the moon. He was glancing down at his own feet, and remarked to Lillian Copeland, famed more for her beauty than for her acting:

"The world of men, dear lady, is sharply divided into two classes—

those who wear white socks and those who are beloved by women."

"And you," the stage beauty smiled up at him, "belong to both classes at once."

There were many more of them—Norton Penton, wearing his toupee, and rightly believing that, in the early fifties, he was still a matinee idol; James P. Ford, noted for the acid of his theatrical reviews, and looking more like a boy actor than a middle-aged critic, good-looking and charming, and—among the strangers to the house—New York's most spectacular young surgeon, the celebrated Dr. David Churchill, who had been brought there by Friedrich Leipzig.

He was introduced to Janet, and she felt instinctively that she liked David Churchill. He was only thirty-six, and astonishingly young to have achieved such fame in the world of surgery. He was above medium height, and wore tortoiseshell rimmed spectacles, while his hands were large, and Janet thought, dreadfully capable!

"I feel like a fish, Miss Wilde," the surgeon confided in her.

"Out of water?" Janet asked. "Try a cocktail!" She signed to Peter.

"Can't," he laughed. "I'm pouring, in my way, tomorrow morning—so I can't even try a little alcohol. But will you tell me how it is that I find myself among so many celebrities?"

"Is this modesty?" Janet chaffed him. "I know less of your world than you can possibly know of ours, and yet even I have heard of you. So the modesty is the same kind as that of my dear father."

"He is charming," David Churchill smiled at her. "Rather like a child—if I dare say so to his daughter."

"Exactly like a child," Janet began, when she turned to listen to what Gordon was saying to her father.

"I am a nobody in the theatre, Mr. Wilde," Gordon was saying, in tones of hushed awe, "but even I am vain enough to think that I know a little about your profession. May I tell you, then, that you were a revelation of dramatic art to-night, and that I can never thank you sufficiently?"

Even Janet held her breath in suspense. She knew that her father would take flattery by the shovel, but wasn't this a little too gross?

But she need not have worried. Fenimore Wilde smiled benignly. He had swallowed it all, and was delighted with Gordon

"You are very kind to an old man, Mr. Pryor—just an old actor who has achieved some slight success, and who is always grateful to anyone good enough to say that he has not altogether failed."

"Can you beat it!" Janet turned to her new friend. "Dr. Churchill—is there any flattery a famous actor won't swallow?"

"I like flattery myself," he confessed. "Any time another doctor intimates that I'm not so bad—I like it all right!"

Peter came into the room and whispered to Fenimore Wilde. Janet saw her father hurry out into the hall, and wishing to save him from any possible annoyance, she followed him.

In the hall stood a shabby, and rather tragic figure. He was a man past sixty, with long gray hair and all the hall-marks of the old-fashioned tragedian.

"Matthew Drake, as I live!" Fenimore Wilde exclaimed heartily. "Matthew, it warms my heart to see you."

"Spoken as I would have you speak, Fenimore," the old man's voice rolled through the house. "Others might have imagined that at the height of your fame, Fenimore, you would have forgotten just an old friend—a man persistently kept down by ill-fortune."

"Forget you!" Fenimore returned, shaking both the other's hands. "But come on in! A few friends of mine are here, as they are kind enough to like what I did tonight."

But the old man drew back. "No, Fenimore," he said in a lower voice. "I would not be a death's head at your fest. I am not in the mood for strangers, but if you could—I happen to be temporarily embarrassed—waiting for a check—but if you could let me have ten dollars—I would."

"I refuse absolutely," Fenimore Wilde said as he dived into his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills. "How dare you, Matthew, ask an old friend for ten? What am I? An actor—or a pawnbroker? I shall be honored if you will let me act as your banker, and, peeling off some bills, he thrust a hundred dollars into the old man's hand, and then attended him to the door with as much ceremony as though he had been John Montague himself.

Janet's eyes misted with tears. "You're very dear, Father."

They had all gathered at supper, and raising a glass of champagne, Augustus Slade proposed his host's health.

Fenimore Wilde rose to reply. "My friends," he said, in his musical voice, "tonight forms almost a turning-point in my career when I look around me and—"

Janet saw her father's face turn a grey-green in color. His hand went to his throat, and then, after a ghastly second, Fenimore Wilde crashed face down over the supper-table, and lay still.

Fenimore Wilde had delivered his last lines.

DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES AFFECTS FARMERS

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT MAKES PUBLIC ITS MONTHLY REVIEW

WHEAT FARMERS SHOWING DISPOSITION TO WITHHOLD CROP FROM MARKET

Washington, Sept. 8.—(U.P.)—A decline in wheat prices has affected income of thousands of growers in western states, the agriculture department's monthly review said today.

Prospects are for larger yields of several principal crops than anticipated earlier in the season, the review said, with indications of lowered prices for these products.

Wheat farmers are showing a disposition to withhold their crop from market because of the low prices. Considerable winter wheat, however, went to the elevators last month at prices of from 75 to 85 cents a bushel to growers.

Reports from about 20,000 farmers indicate intentions to decrease acreage of wheat this fall about two per cent below last year's sowings. The chief reductions are foreseen in the corn belt.

The declining market for wheat has been shared also by corn and potatoes.

Beef-cattle producers are once again in strong position, the department said. Prices for hogs are believed on the upswing and the dairy industry is in "relatively good shape" with milk prices at the highest level since 1920.

The general index of purchasing power of farm products remained at 93 during July, as compared with a pre-war figure of 100. This is close to the highest point reached since 1920, the review added.

Succulent Triumph
Apple pie was never invented. It is a natural and inevitable product of evolution. It is a survival of the sweetest. In the dim dark ages before the dawn of civilization mankind groped among the berry bushes and the weeds for sustenance, and was duly thankful for life. Fire came, and cooking. Ancient civilizations developed the art. At last came the day when apple pie was baked. Since then the art has continued, but has not advanced.—Exchange
